DEATH OF THE KING OF THE BELGIANS As usual at this time of year we are thinking great deal more about our Christmas bills than about those which refer to reform or anything else; money is not dear, but it is awfully scarce although business is good-never was better-the complaints about worlld " from London is perhaps the only feasible

But if other bills are not to be got in. it seem certain now that we are to have a reform bill. The fusion between the ministerial party and that of Ma Bright is now beyond question; the latter agrees to moderate instalment of suffrage extention, and it only remains te be seen whether Lord Russell, Mr Gladstone. Mr Bright and such men as Mr Forster-he himself is safe being now in the Ministry-can agree upon the amount of moderation. Earl Russell had eclared to a deputation from Bradford that he favorable to the admission of the working classes t participation in the representation in proportion their interests and intelligence. The coming bil will it is said make a small reduction in the qualification for the borough franchise, a still smaller one that for the counties, and a redistribution of seats for towns and boroughs in order to render the numbers of electors more equal throughout the country. Some journals say -" We shall see how the conservative party receives the proposal "-We need not wait for that indication; that party has already declared itself through its organ the Herald and by the month of its members in the world; the new plan of reform as sketched would considerably diminish the conser vative interest in the boroughs, and will have the mos energetic and determined opposition. The Herald says: - "The alliance of Mr Bright with Earl Russell is an open challenge to the conservative party" and so no doubt it is. It is to be hoped however that Mr Gladstone will so conduct the matter as not terrify hesitating liberals or timid conservatives, and that we shall escape the vexations annoyance of another revolutionary and irritating party struggle. When there is scarcely any demand for great retenopinions and feelings of opponents; and when there is such an utter absence of danger from moderate extension of the franchise, it would be equally unwise to stem a rivulet which, if dammed, might easily become a torrent. Parliament is really to commence business on the first of February, and the Queen will open, or rather will be represented at the opening of thenew parliament. It is said that Her Majesty will not go in full state and will not read the speech herself, but will take her place on the throne, her court costume being laid by her side, while the speech i read by the Lord Chancellor. There is a general feeling of satisfaction of the appearance of the Queen, egain, in public life, and the world will care very little about the state carriage, the beefeaters, or the robe of state. The most important and the saddest news which we have from the Continent is that of the death of the king of the Belgians who expired yesterday morning at the age of 75. The career of the late king was an extraordinary one; in 1810 he was a general in the Russian army, in 1818 he was the husband of the heiress of the British throne, in 1831 he was on the throne of Belgium, having been elected against a son of Louis Philippe, and very soon afterwards he married a daughter of that sovereign. His only daughter, named after his first consort, is Empress of

The uneasiness caused by recent acts of the Washington government with regard to Mexico scems to have subsided, and this last repulse will scarcely raise the Juarists in the estimation of the Americans of the States. It seems probable indeed that the Washington governments will have it hands too full at the opening of the coming session to trouble itself much about Mexico. From Our PARIS Correspondent,

Paris, 11th November, 1865. The news of the death of King of the Belgians which reached us yesterday created great regret although it was fully expected. I am sorry to say that speculations are already affoat respecting a new distribution or to speak plainly, a confiscation, of the dead King's estate. Prussia, France and Holland are said to have determined on a partition, to which England has assented; whatever grain of truth there may be in the former part of the story you may be sure that the latter portion is as false as a smile on he lips of a deceiver.

The management of the two non official journals, the officious journals as they are generally called, the Constitutionnel and the Pays, the genuine of the back staircase, is one of the most curious things connected with the Imperial government; those papers are utterly without authority power or respect in Paris; they are confounded for the special use of the charbacons of the country, including the maires, assistant maires, gendarmerie, rural policemen and others who depend on the governmental channels for their information, and being neither governmental nor independent you may easily imagine how difficult they are to manage. M. Grandguillot who has sunk of late years from being the butt or the press to utter oblivion has been put aside for some reason or other and a man selected who ought to be safe .- M. Welles sela Valette the adopted son of one Ministor and the son in law of another. M. Welles as were as Mrs Gamp might have said, is an American born, and s the same gentleman for whom two laws were proken by the government and the Emperor not long since. He was allowed to stand for election as deputy when an alien, being elected illegally, the Emperor having presented him with letters of naturalization before he had resided in France the legal time. Mr Welles must have been born; with a silver spoon

Italy may be looked upon as nearly safe now. Wurtemberg is actually thinking of recognizing Victor Emmanuel! Prussia had already done so, Bavaria and Sixony have recently followed suit, and Wurtemberg is not expected to withold the light of her countenance must longer. Happy Victor Emmanuel! you need not now dread being placed in a position almost as terrible as that Louis Napoleon who never yet has been and never can be now, recognized by the late, little, Grand Duke of Modena. Apart from the Wurtemberg movement, it is important note the fact that it is expected that before long Italy will be in diplomatic relation with all Germany with the single exception of Austria.

The Japanese commissioners have finished their excursions in the manufacturing districts of France, and are now on the point of starting for England where they will spend some time. The Court has been very gay at Complegne; during the last few weeks there having been a constant succession of visitors, battues, theatricals and all kinds of amusements. Lord Cowley and Lord Dudley were amongst the latest guests. Lord Dudley created a bit of gossip the other day; when the game was laid out on the ground in the bouquet, as this exhibition of tropbies is called in the theatrical jargon of the chasse, the people were kept at a most respectful distance by the officers and soldiers. Lord Dudley, with his English notions, said-"why do you not let them approach, they will not touch anything?" -I beg your pardon my Lord, was the reply, we have tried them and always found some pieces missing. The incident has created a good deal of notice. The same Lord as exhibiting his liberal habits here as well as in England; when he left Complegue he went to Calais where he met the Engineers and others engaged in laying a new kind of electric cable across the channel, for a company of which Lord Dudley is a member, he immediately ordered a grand dejenuer to which not only all the Englishmen connected with the undertaking but all the engineers of the vicinity. This is like the man . who on leaving home for were invited his tenants the permission to kill the game on his estate, provided they regarded the laws of sport and did not sell the game. A journalist here says, not very patriotically, " what land owner here would grant such a privilege on such conditions?" He does not seem to have more confidence in his countrymen than the officials of Compiegne themselves.

The King and Queen of Portugal were to return here and spend a few days at Compiègne and the Prince and Princess of Wales were expected to meet them, but the alarming state of King Leopold prevented this arrangement. When the news of the King's death arrived all the anusements ordered for the present week were at once countermanded and will probably not be resumed as the season is now approaching its conclusion. The death will carry mourning into many courts, including, England, France, Mexico and Pertugal.

While on royalty intent, I may mention the rumoured marriage of Prince Humbert the eldest son of Victor Emmanuel with the Princess Engenie of Leuchlemberg Beaubaruaes, daughter of the Grand Duchess Marie of Russia. Also that Queen Emma of the Sandwich Islands has just passed through Paris on her way to Nice, or the Islands of Hyeres

One more rather curious bit of court news - Yturbide the Emperor of Mexico who was killed by the revolutionists some twenty or thirty years since, left a family of nine children; of these the youngest son, who is now in Paris, and two daughters survive; there are also two grandsons, one of whom is now at school here, and the Emperor Maximilian has createded these descendants of his predecessor Yturbide to the rank of Princes for life. An act of policy probably order to conciliate a party, if any exist, of old

There was considerable excitement here the other day about Mexico; rumours of some disaster were current, and it was said that the Americans were about to help the republicans to take the Matamoras : this received a certain amount of apparent confirmation from the fact of the Washington government appointing a representative to the Juarez government. An attack has since been made on the frontier town in question, but the republicans, whether aided or not by the Americans, are said to have been repulsed with the loss of about three hundred killed

There died here the other day a lady aged ninety, the countess de Grollier daughter of the Duc de Choiseul the minister of Louis XV, another link, like that of the late Miss Berry in England, in a long and interesting historical chain

The late high rates of discount and the discussions relative to the Bank systems of London and Paris have given rise to the establishment of a commission of enquiry by the minister of commerce on the subject. Baron Rothschild and several other eminent bankers and economists have been examined and with scarcely any exception, they declare that the raising of the minimum rate of discount by the national banks s not only an inevitable necessity arising from the great activity of the commercial world, but a most valuable means of warning merchants when they are outrunning, or rather when the commercial world in general is outcurning its means. One financier only argued for a fixed rate of discount, and he moreover advocated perfect free trade in banking, the issuing of notes and all other matters. Generally, the opinions of all the witnesses were favorable to the present systems of the Banks of France and England. such as for the country in which it acts. Baron Roths. child commenced his evidence with a sentence which attracted considerable notice; he said :-- "There has not been, in fact, any crisis of late, and we shall be less and less subject to crisis as we progress in commercial mattere." May the Baron turn out a true prophet! Still the late difficulties in the money market had rather a smack of the crisis than not ... nine months exhibit, as compared with last year an M. has also just published an important work on banks ing ; his views being in accordance with those stated above. In this work are also some tables and much highly interesting commercial information, The general results exhibited by these tables are femarkable in more than our point of view. We find that the export trade of France in 1836 did not amount to 700 millions of france, while that of England was very nearly 1,278 millions; in 1863 the fotals were, respectively, 3,526 and 4,899 millions, the difference between the exports of the two countries having been increased, in favour of England, from 5751 to 1,733 millions. If we turn to another table exhibiting the proportions which the exports bear to the population, we find that while the exports of England in 1836 of France amounted to 214 and that in 1863, the

Thus we see that while France has built up a large commerce on a very small basis, England has gone on increasing her immense fabric not certainly at the same rate, which could scarcely have been possible, but at such a rate that Teen maintained but more than doubled in all respects. The past year maintained this advantage on the side of England, and the current one with probably largely increase it.

France, like England, is falling off in manhood : is a sad thing to say but it is the fact, the population this year not only shows an excess of a hundred housand grown women but also of more than a mildren or the mothers arrange the matter to avoid the conscription! In Austria the excess is tending the other way. Nothing can be more dissimilar than the condition and habits of society in England and France : what can then be the cause of this tendency in both countries to the production of an undue proportion of the female sex. Talking of the ladies, I may mention a story that is just now going the round of the press here; an officer was dancing at the Hotel des Invalides of Vienna when his foot caught in his partners crinoline, and he fell heavily, breaking one of his legs; the lady could not recover her equilibrium and falling upon her prostrate hero broke his other leg. If the ladies are becoming ponderous in proportion to their members we shall literally be crushed. The story of the unfortunate officer is. doubtless only a malicious sketch of the coming danver. If the ladies cannot help outnumbering us we may, however, feel pretty confident in their gentle matures not to fall too heavily upon us ; besides the upon us. We shall be treated like rare China.

THE Emen with telegrams from Europe up to the 6th of December arrived in harbour on the 15th instant; her procrastination was caused by a severe gale, sustained by the home-side steamer in the Bay of Biscay. An article appeared in our issue of the above date, advocating reorganisation in the Harbour regulations; noticing, at the same time the paucity of employes engaged in that department. Piracy, a subject which has lately become a most usual appendix to our summaries, has been asserting itself most strongly during the past fortnight. The French brig Jeanae & Joseph was on the night of the 16th when near Tamtoo, -- a point only about 30 miles distance from this attacked by armed junks, two of the crew murdered and the vessel rebbed of every article of value. The other case occurred on board the American brigantine Alma, which vessel when off Pooty, had a mild engagement with two junks, which ended in the capture of the vessel; the destructive missal common to celestial maranders, viz: stink-pots, ransed the Captain and crew to be only too glad to find refuge by flight. Two of the seamen are missing, and little doubt exists as to the fact that they were brutally inurdered. A third case which will be found that of a vessel-the Albert Jurss-being attacked while laying within the precints of the harbour; fortunately however the miscreants' evil intentions were frustrated by reason of the strict watch kept, and they had to "clear out" minus any pillage One man was severely wounded however.

The prize for the design of the City Hall which is to be crected here, has been awarded to Mons. Hermitte, the gentleman who executed the elevations for the Canton Cathedral. The usual Monthly Criminal Session was held on the 18th instant; but few cases of any but local interest stood for adjudication. A serious charge against an American for attempting to murder was postponed owing to the inability of the prosecutor to appear, his wounds being of such a nature as not to admit of his attendance In a few other cases of gobbery with violence, the Celestial depredators were meted out their fair allowance of the confinement and flogging. This latter Ordinance has as we have formerly observed, a most sanitary effect upon crime, the culprits most most decidedly perferring to suffer the last penalty of the law, in lieu of suffering the pain, caused by the nine tailed niember of the feline species

"Alarming intelligence has been brought per piece. from Hankow by the steamer Fire Queen which left on the 21st instant. At that date a large Rebel force were within 30 | no sales. miles of the city, and one of the leading Imperialist Generals had turned over to the insurgents side. The Taoutai of Hankow was in great trepidation and had applied for assistance to all the Foreign Consuls. An urgent dispatch conveyed by the Fire Queen to Captain Tucker R.N. of H.M.'s Gunboat Algerine at Kiukiang calling upon him to proceed to Hankow was at once once complied with, that vessel leaving under steam and sail on Monday morning. The presence of the French Gunboat Fardif would doubtless provide for the safety of the foreign residents until the Algerine arrived. Refugees were flocking into the foreign settlement from all sides and were noticed on the River banks for many miles below Hankow; presenting a similar melancholy spectacile to those at Shanghae which myst be in the recollection of many of our readers. The Hankow Times of the 20th instant has an article urging the establishment of a Volunteer Force, and curiously enough contains on amusing inmaginary description 4.4 per picul of an attack upon the settlement."

At CHINKIANG, NEWCHWANG, SWATOW, and Canton, the utmost alarm has been created by reports which declare that rebel forces are within but a few miles of the reported at length in another column, is different places mentioned. The Owl-a periodical published at the latter portthinks however that Canton being to some extent under British rule, the rebels (or the Nien-feias they are termed) would not deem it expedient to attack the city, as they would thereby bring foreign resentment to bear upon them.

The expediency of gradually dispensing with the annual festivities which accompany the advent of the "China New Year." was strongly commented upon in our diurnal issue : it would certainly be a great saving of money to the promoters of them, and save many Europeans a headache, were these entertainments discontinued.

A most peculiar accident happened in the Colony the other day; a lady coming ashore in a sampan, while trifling with a revolver accidentally shot one of the boatmen, who was engaged hoisting the sail and he died almost immediately; the jury, judging by the evidence immediately returned a verdict of accident death.

We hourly expect the arrival of the Messageries Imperiales steamer conveying of noth the "Mail lines" has so destroyed our confidence, that we do not expect to receive any home intelligence, ere the publication of this. What with the Chinese New Year and our horse races, February promises to prove a tolerably joyful season as times are most decidedly "looking up;" we hope to see much merriment and conviviality displayed at both of these periods.

HONGKONG OPIUM MARKET Charles Jameson's Opium Circular, dated Hongkong, 30th January, 1866, says:-My last Opium Circular dated the 13th instant. represented the price of Bengal Opium as having been sustained, while Malwa had fallen considerably. I have now to report that there has been very little variation in rates of the former during the past fortnight, while Malwa has fluctuated very muchclon and after each arrival taking place. The greater part of the stock now on hand is advanced on. PATNA- Was last quoted at $645 per chest, and first sale new drug to arrive at $730 giving way slightly for present deliveries up to the 18th instant.

Since when prices have improved, a speculative demand having arisien, and the closing rates are now $655 per chest, lat sale to arrive $735. BENARES-Has been in fair demand at about $18 12.50 per chest below Patnas MALWA .- Was last reported as quiet at $810 per chest, remaining so, and opening at the same rate on the arrival of the Str. Emeu on the 15th. Dealers entering into the market freely caused the prices to advance quickly to $825 a 830 per chest finally touching $875 a 880, declining however some $30 stirring spirit of speculation has caused rates to advance from $810 to its present quotatons of $850 a 855 per chest. TURKEY .- Sales of some 20 cases reported at $560 per pecul, PERSIAN .- None. Last sales at $750 per pecul. Estimated Stock, 13th Jan..... Imports per Strs. Asia, Emeu, C. Apear, and Benares, about ...

Exports, &c., &c., Estimated Stock, 30th January,

The following is from Messis Sharp & Co.'s GOLD. The receipts during the last fortnight amount to $490,000 and the exports for the same period are $760,000. These large amounts have affected the market but slightly, and the closing prices are within a shade of last Mail's rates. SILVER Total receipts $980,000. Total exports

$702,000. All bullion has been in demand for Indian remittance, and Silver has shared in the advance. DOLLAR CURRENCY.-We have received $660,000 and sent away $650,000. The amounts exported of Gold, Silver, and Dollars must be understood to include the last Mail per Jeddo, on the 15th January. and to exclude the shipments per the steamer tomorrow; as it is impossible to obtain these totals accurately until the Mail is out. Discounts and Mortgages, Money has been in considerable demand on account of the approach of China New Year, commencing on the 15th February, and various high rates have been paid from 10 to 12 per cent. SHARES, The scarcity of money has lately pre-generally very well sustained. EXCHANGE .- The tightness of the money markets here and in India have caused an advance in Sterling and a decline in Rupees.
